

Paul Bryan

KNUCKLES MUSIC

10/10/09

Summary

Blake - What I like (Knuckles Insomniac Remix)

'What I like' is a live experiment set on the Underground. Picture the scene, dazed early morning businessmen, all reading the free morning newspaper 'The Metro'. The train approaches the next station and the commuters stand up and wait patiently by the doors, each rolling their papers into baton shapes. At this point the music is continuously building until the camera switches to the platform as the train grinds to a halt.

As the beat drops the doors open and in slow motion 4 business men bombard out of the doors, bashing into one another each holding their own running baton (rolled up paper).

Loose business notes fly everywhere and morning commuters are barged out of the way. We have the start of a 4x400 metre relay race, or for this video a 4x400 metro relay race.

The race will be from the train to the ticket barrier and will reflect the competitive nature of the business world. Competing will be employees from four different companies in teams of four.

The 16 businessmen and women will sprint down platforms and race up and down escalators/stairs causing havoc in the morning. With three baton changes on the way the winning team will be the first through the ticket barrier.

Graphic Communicator

www.pmbryan.com
info@pmbryan.com